

Our commitment to sustainability

Mission Australia is a responsible organisation with strong ethical, sustainable and inclusive practices, as highlighted in our Strategy 2030. We are committed to creating a fair and sustainable future for everyone in Australia.

Together, we're building hope and possibility for all. Our sustainability approach focuses on the following three priority areas:

Environmental sustainability

Protecting our planet and helping to build climate resilience for our organisation and the people and communities we serve.

Climate change
Nature
Sustainable procurement

Social impact

Enhancing the wellbeing of people and communities through high quality delivery of services, housing, research and advocacy.

Stable housing
Health and wellbeing
Support and connections
Choice, control and independence
Strengthening communities
Community voice and engagement

Responsible governance

Continuing to embed rigorous responsible, ethical and transparent governance processes and practices across our organisation.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples
Diversity and inclusion
Modern slavery
Staff wellbeing
Corporate governance arrangements
Board and trustees

We know that climate, health, homes, and wellbeing are all connected. Mission Australia is committed to achieving net zero by 2050. We're taking action to expand the use of renewable energy, improve energy efficiency across our operations, and minimise waste. We are also supporting people and communities to build resilience in the face of climate change and to harness opportunities that arise along the way.
